

Story Of Building Of Cathedral Told

A meeting was called six years ago of people interested in the work of Trinity, which had already outgrown the old church and parish house, under the leadership of Dean Scarlett. At this meeting over $10,000 was subscribed. A little later the bishop went east and received a telegram saying that subscriptions amounting to $7,000 or $8,000 additional had been made with the modest request that he should raise $20,000 in the east. This was a comparatively easy task, as a friend immediately gave the entire sum for the erection of the Cathedral House, which she requested might be made a memorial to her two sons and serve as a center of the diocesan activities of the bishop as well as a parish house for Trinity church. In the meantime, land with 200 ft. frontage had been bought on Roosevelt street, facing First avenue, ideally situated for our purpose. The building was completed, being constructed of Tufa stone in the mission style. $5,000 was added to the original gift by the generous donor to complete the building, the design of which had been enlarged from the original plans. From this amount a small sum was left as a nucleus for the erection of a bishop's house or the cathedral. From subscriptions already made by members of the parish and from a few new ones, after completing the purchase of the lots, furnishings were provided for the cathedral house and the cathedral itself really began as the foundations were laid of the chancel and also the tower which was to be at the junction of the cathedral house and the cathedral looking down First avenue and visible for a long distance.

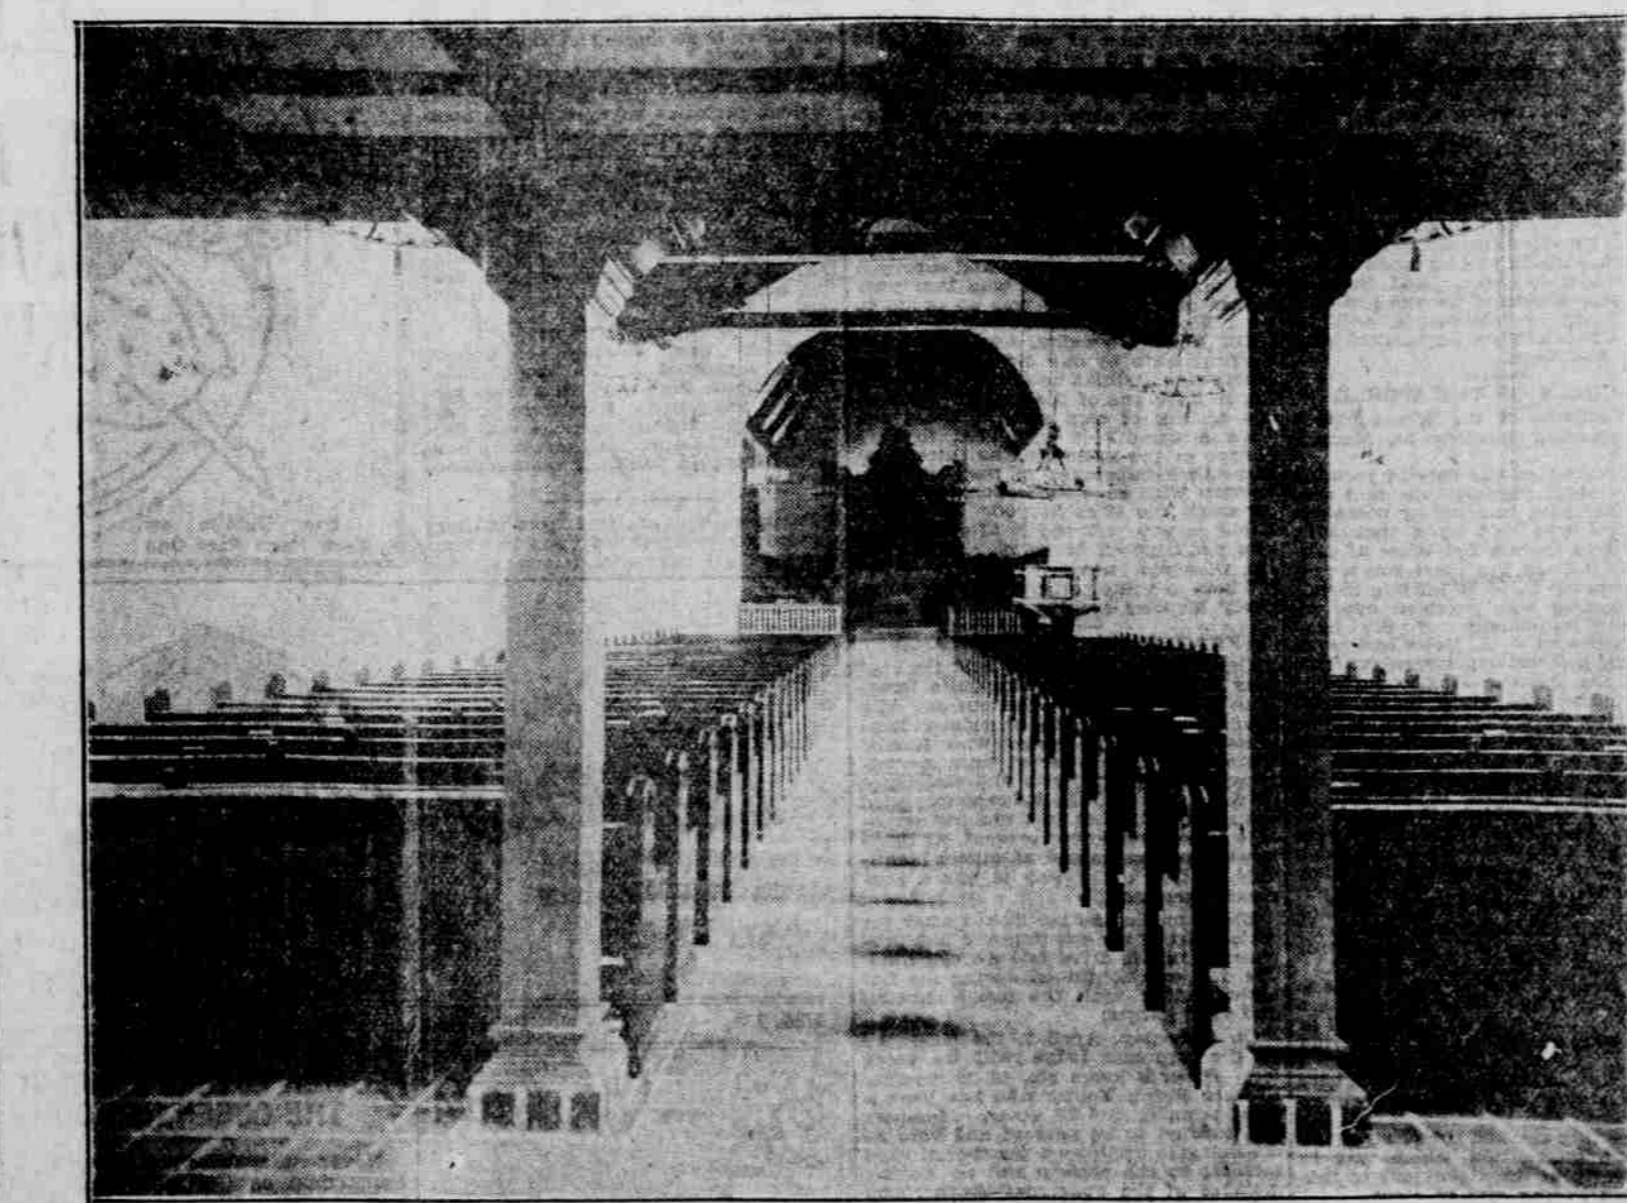

In the great business depression that followed it was impossible to collect all of the subscriptions and it seemed undesirable to go on with further building, but there remained a small sum in bank for future building.

In the meantime another 100 feet frontage of adjoining land had been purchased through gifts from eastern friends in order to protect the west side of the future cathedral and also provide a lot for the bishop's house. In 1918, $5,000 was generously offered from the legacy fund of the board of missions toward the Bishop's House. By great good fortune, Mr. Smalley, a former member of the office of Charles A. Platt of New York, was in Phoenix and generously offered to prepare the design of the house, which was submitted to Mr. Coolidge for his approval in order that it might be in harmony with the other buildings.

The cost of the Bishop's House with the land was nearly $20,000 the remaining amount being given largely by a few friends in Phoenix and elsewhere in Arizona. Unfortunately, the expense of building with tufa made it necessary to use brick, but fortunately Mr. Wallingford, the supervising architect, was able to secure stucco of a color which would harmonize with the tufa of the Cathedral House.

At this time the United States had entered the war and so all thought of beginning the Cathedral was deferred. When the armistice had been arranged

there was thought of beginning a campaign but the work was interfered by the influenza and other causes. Deferred from the spring until autumn, the nation wide campaign called for the right-of-way. It was justly felt by many that the Cathedral should be built at once, as there was no Episcopal church in Phoenix with its 20,000 people, while the large assembly room of the Cathedral House was filled on Sunday by a congregation which did not find the hall, attractive as it is, altogether conducive to a devotional spirit and the worship of Almighty God. It was estimated that at least $125,000 should be raised for this purpose. There was available from the nucleus left over from the former building fund and the sale of the old property, $50,000 or a little more. The campaign was started to raise an additional $75,000 on January 1. Over $50,000 has now been subscribed in Phoenix, not only by members of our own church, but by members of other religious bodies, including Roman Catholics and Christian Scientists and by citizens of Phoenix who recognize the work of social service and religious education which has been rendered under the auspices of the church. We have sought to be good citizens, as well as good churchmen, and to serve the community as well as the Parish. We confidently believe that the fund will be completed, and that others from outside the city and the state from interest or association, will wish to make some contribution in the way of memorial gifts or otherwise.

Memorials of any kind must be submitted to the bishop and vestry for consent and approval of the design. The pulpit costing in the neighborhood of $2,000 is a memorial to Bishop Kenrick, and undoubtedly some of his friends at a distance as well as at home will seek the privilege of contributing to this memorial of one who faithfully laid the foundation of the church in Arizona. Mrs. Reid gave $5,000 in memory of Whitelaw Reid. Mrs. E. J. Bennett contributed in memory of her parents, and by the gift of $15,000 the tower became a memorial of the late James McLean of New York. The Dean's Hall is a memorial of Dr. John W. Foss and there are windows in memory of Bishop Dunlap and Mrs. Alexander.

It would be a noble memorial if someone would give $12,000 for the organ. Lesser gifts might cover the font, the lectern, the altar rail, bishops' chair, sedilia for the sanctuary, as well as choir seats in the chancel, the outside pulpit, and the altar for the tower, a large glass communion service, offertory plates, and books for the chancel. The altar and reredos are the gift of Mr. Frederick Bartlett of Chicago and New York.

One of the interesting things about the campaign thus far has been the fine and generous spirit of service and unselfishness, and the large number of givers. In a parish where there are few or no rich people, it has been necessary for everyone to do his or her share, and everybody has wanted to have some part in the work.

By the Constitution or Institutes already adopted, the Cathedral becomes the central church of the whole missionary district of Arizona, as well as the Parish of Trinity of the city of Phoenix. The literal meaning of the word cathedral is the bishop's seat, and according to the Institutes the bishop has control of the ritual or order of service of the cathedral. He has the right, when he desires, to use it for preaching, or for conducting services for administering the various offices of the church. For this reason, church people throughout the state should feel that it belongs to them and should wish to make some contribution, however small, to its erection. This might take the form of individual gifts and of special offerings on a designated Sunday which might be called Cathedral Sunday, when the opportunity would be provided for each member of the church in Arizona to give for this purpose.

The cathedral should also be a missionary center and one or more additional clergy should be attached to the cathedral and new missions established or revived throughout the Salt River valley and surrounding country. The time will come when the Cathedral House will have to be enlarged if it is to serve the parish, the community and the diocese completely. Even now we need a rectory or deanery to complete the group of buildings and provide a house for the dean, who is also rector of the parish.

The cathedral building committee consists of Bishop Atwood, Dean William Scarlett, Dwight B. Heard, chairman, H. S. Reed, Franklin D. Lane, V. O. Waldman and is supervising architect, and E. Kagan is the contractor.

The average cost of each soldier recruited for the United States army is $74.15. In 1913, the average cost per recruit was $127.

Trinity cathedral, the chief church of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Arizona, has been completed at a cost of more than $210,000, exclusive of the bishop's residence which adjoins it. It stands at First avenue and Roosevelt street, and is one of the most beautiful and imposing buildings in the city.

The cathedral is built of tufa stone, with the towers and redwood and plaster interior. The interior style is stately and dignified, the redwood ceiling and joists, which are made of single beams of the beautiful California wood, giving a quietly rich appearance to the entire structure.

Everything pertaining to the cathedral has been selected with a view to its harmonizing with the rest of the furnishings and the building itself. The reredos, which was donated to the church as a memorial of his wife by Frederick C. Bartlett of Chicago, and the altar of tufa stone which stands before it, are in exquisite taste. The bishop's stall and the dean's stall are in dark wood, simply carved. The pulpit, which was given by the Daughters of the King, is a wonderfully beautiful example of the wood carver's art, and is one of the most striking things in the cathedral. Leading from the chancel is a small chapel for special services.

Adjoining the cathedral proper is the parish house, the first floor of which is almost entirely devoted to a large assembly and Sunday school room. On the second floor are a kitchen, guild room, dean's study, bishop's study, diocesan room, altar guild room and a choir room with lockers for the junior and cathedral choirs.

One of the most striking features of the cathedral are the lighting fixtures, which are of medieval design and which bring into fine relief the pure simplicity of the interior finish.

Arrest Suspect in Douglas. Thought to have been implicated in the robbery of The Toggery here last Monday morning, a suspect was arrested in Douglas Friday by Police Sergeant Burk, according to word telegraphed to Marshal Warren. A quantity of clothing was found in the possession of the suspect, but closer investigation revealed the fact that none of it tallied with any of the merchandise taken from the Toggery and he

NORTH BROS. BEGIN REPAIRS TO STORE

Repairs of the damage done to their store in the big fire of last Wednesday afternoon, which completely destroyed its business buildings on West Washington street, was begun yesterday by North Brothers. The flames reached the North Brothers building when a fire wall between that and the Burkhead building went down, taking with it a portion of the roof. The repair work will be completed by Monday, Mr. North said yesterday.

Immediate adjustment of the claim by the Arizona Fire Insurance company, a home institution, has made it possible for us to go ahead with the repair work without delay," Mr. North stated. "Adjustors of the Phoenix company lost no time in making the adjustment."

The loss sustained by the W. E. Gardner auto agency will total $38,000. Mr. Gardner estimated yesterday. Total damage by the fire, based on this and previous estimates, will approximate $75,000.

Mr. Gardner distributes his loss as follows: 11 repossessed cars, $17,500; three new cars, $1500; two slightly used cars, $2000; fixtures, parts, accessories and other stock, $13,000. This loss is fully covered by insurance, Mr. Gardner states.

Other losses by the fire include: M.

L. Burkhead auto agency, $2500; North Brothers company, $500; Bab-bit Brothers, $100; to buildings, between $25,000 and $40,000.

FORMER PRESCOTT ATTORNEY IS DEAD

J. Ralph Tascher, who for a number of years practiced law in Prescott, is dead in Los Angeles. News of the death of the former Arizona attorney was received in this city by his brother-in-law, Floyd Stahl. The funeral will take place in the coast city on Monday.

On being advised of the illness of her brother, Mrs. Stahl left at once for California, but did not arrive before he passed away on Friday evening.

Mr. Tascher was well known in the northern part of the state, where he practiced law during the early years of statehood. Later he went east and for the past few years had been established on the coast.

According to P. P. Claxton, federal commissioner or education, corporal punishment of school children is likely to indicate weakness in the teacher. Claxton says: "Any person, competent to teach and manage a school, can maintain discipline without whipping pupils."

The annual cost of maintaining one soldier in Germany is $5,000 marks (normally $8,200).

"For there was never yet a Philosopher that could endure the Toothache patiently"

Modern dentistry has made such progressive strides, since Shakespeare wrote the above lines, that few people suffer from toothache today for any reason other than neglect. The man, woman and child who observe the practical rule of having their teeth examined by an expert dentist, at least twice a year, rarely experience so much as a twinge of pain in their teeth or gums.

And likewise, those who observe this sensible precaution keep their own teeth longest and spend far less for dentists' bills than those who wait for pain itself to send them to the dentist. Come in today and let us demonstrate the sound logic of the foregoing statement.
